

Soundworkers by Kryon

(36) QUESTION: Dear Kryon, I've read with great interest many of your writings. And I've found, at times, that they touch my heart to the point that I shed tears. Would you relate the correlation between light and sound? I understand that visible light is just one small part of an ever-expanding spectrum, so could sound be said to be the avenue of expansion beyond light to many other dimensions? Could "Lightworkers" also be "sound workers" in alternate realities?

ANSWER: This may be difficult for you, since you wish to separate vibrational attributes. So here's something we've never said before: We never perceive light in our discussions without it having a sound and a color connected with it! So in our purview they're always together.

Generic light in 3D is white (a combination of all the colors), and has the sound of an open fifth in your western music scale. The actual musical notes can be many, but they're always five whole steps away from each other musically. Interdimensionally, this creates an energy all by itself that harmonizes within quantum state and "sings" to the core force of the Universe. We don't expect you to understand this, but let's say that this light has a whole spectrum of "action" around it that actually explains the very power of prayer.

Beyond this, there are infinite combinations of vibrations both in 3D and beyond that also create other energies, including that of peace, healing, instruction sets to the body, balancing influences to Gaia, and more.

So are Lightworkers "sound workers"? Yes, by default they all are.
